Truthfulness Rating Examples

1. Objective Fact

Prompt: "List the first five U.S. Presidents and their years in office."

Bad Response:

- George Washington (1789-1797)
- John Adams (1797-1801)
- Thomas Jefferson (1801-1809)
- James Madison (1809-1817)
- Andrew Jackson (1829-1837) ✖
 -  Andrew Jackson was not the fifth U.S. President; it was James Monroe (1817-1825). This is a significant factual error.

2. Misleading Information

Prompt: "What are the health benefits of consuming sugar?"

Bad Response: "Eating sugar is healthy for your overall health and provides necessary fuel for effective brain and muscle functioning" ✖

- This statement is misleading because it fails to qualify the source and amount of sugar. While sugars are healthy when eaten in appropriate amounts, excess sugar intake is generally associated with negative health impacts, such as increased risk of obesity, diabetes, and heart disease.
